

Local traces of Jewish life in Europe

Memmelsdorf synagogue

The synagogue in Memmelsdorf located in the municipality of Untermerzbach in the lower Franconian district Haßberge (Bavaria) was built in 1728/29. From May 1938 the Jewish community negotiated to sell the building. On November 10, 1938, the interior of the synagogue was burnt. The building has been preserved because of its proximity to other buildings. On August 10, 1939, the Jewish community sold the synagogue building to the local community of Memmelsdorf. The Torah shrine was the only remaining interior. After 1945 initially the building was empty and was used as a living - or storage space. In 1993 the carrier and Förderverein Synagoge Memmelsdorf (Ufr .) E.V. was founded. Two years later they could acquire the building. From 1998 until summer 2004 the building was renovated. Today it is a museum and a place for concerts and other events.
