

1. headline is unclear
→ Who is programmed?
→ reader tries to find out → read

1. paragraph: - irony; not robots, but humans are programmed

2. dangers: - emotional connection to robots, who can't love you back

- long-term danger
- preferring robot-love to human love
- people unlearn to feel human feelings and get used to relations with robots
- robots replace humans in all fields of love
- children believe robots have feelings, or actively dislike them
- robots manipulate people on the basis of their feelings
- might become dependent on their robots